DDOT Releases the DC Circulator Transit Development Plan for Public Comment

(Washington DC) The District Department of Transportation (DDOT) today released the 2014 DC Circulator Transit Development Plan Update (TDP) for public review and comment. In 2011, DDOT completed a comprehensive TDP to guide the growth of the Circulator System over the next 10 years. The 2014 update of the TDP was developed using feedback from the public at the DC Circulator Semi-Annual Open House, six pop-up meetings, and online surveys held earlier this year. Residents have until November 7, 2014 to weigh in on the plan.

“This is the first time a Circulator TDP has been released for public comment,” said DDOT’s Director Matthew Brown. “We want to hear from several communities on the draft plan, and how they want to see the system develop in the future.”

Based on the analysis of land use and screening of corridors based on planning criteria measures, the Draft 2014 TDP identifies six new routes and four route extensions for the 10-year growth plan, implemented in the following three phases:

Phase I (FY 2015 – 2017)

- New Route: National Mall
- New Route: National Cathedral – McPherson Square Metro
- Extension: Georgetown – Union Station Extension to National Cathedral
- Extension: Union Station – Navy Yard Extension to Southwest Waterfront
- Extension: Dupont – Georgetown – Rosslyn Extension to U Street/Howard University
- Extension: Potomac Avenue Metro – Skyland Extension to Congress Heights

Phase II (FY 2018 – 2020)

- New Route: Convention Center – Southwest Waterfront Service
- New Route: Serving NoMa (corridor pending further study)
- No extensions identified for this phase

Phase III (FY 2021 – 2024)

- New Route: Dupont – Southwest Waterfront
- New Route: Columbia Heights – Washington Hospital Center – Brookland – NoMa
- No extensions identified for this phase
